October 2024

Volume 10

Hello everyone, October has arrived!

A question for everyone. Do you remember what you ate last night? If I were suddenly asked such a question, I would have to think for a while before I could respond. I'm sure I ate something delicious, but what on earth did I eat? I just couldn't remember, and I had to look in the refrigerator to see the leftovers from last night. We eat meals every day and enjoy every meal but often we forget about it right away. Rennyō Shōnin taught us that this is the same with Dharma. He said that even if you listen to the Buddha Dharma and think they are precious and grateful at the time, after a few days, you forget about them. It's like scooping water with a sieve. If that's the case, you just need to keep the sieve under water. In other words, he taught us that we should always be in Dharma.

If you look at the Onajin you will find some food. In Buddhist churches, we offer manju, fruits, or rice in front of the Buddha. These are collected after the service and eaten with gratitude. We offer food during the service to remind ourselves to be grateful for the food.

This month I would like to share a Rakugo story with you. The title is "I'm afraid of manju." Manju is a steamed bun stuffed with sweet bean paste and it is sometimes offered in front of the Buddha in Buddhist churches. This story is set in Japan during the Edo period (1603 - 1868). In the Edo period, there wasn't much entertainment like there is today, so it seems that getting together and talking was also a form of entertainment.

One day, young people from the town gathered and talked about things they were afraid of or disliked. Everyone was talking about how they were afraid of spiders and snakes, but one man was completely silent. When asked what he was afraid of, he answered "Nothing." When asked "What about snakes?" he replied, "I wrap those around my head when I have a headache, like a headband. They keep my head tight and it feels good." When asked "What about ants?" He replied, "I sprinkle them on the rice instead of Furikake." He kept saying things like this and it annoyed everyone. Then they asked, him "Isn't there at least one thing you cannot eat?" When everyone asked this question, the man finally thought of something and shouted out, "I'm afraid of manju." Everyone burst out laughing at what he said, and the man said, "That's why I didn't want to tell you. Just the thought of it makes me sick." Then the man said, "I'm going to lie down in the next room for a bit," and left for the next room. The other men decided to play a prank on the arrogant man, so they split up and gathered a lot of manju from a sweets shop. Thinking, the man might get scared and die, they threw the manju into the next room and closed the sliding door to prevent the man from escaping. The man who was lying down covered himself with the futon and said, "Wow, manju! It's scary." The men were pleased that he was scared. Then the man said, "Wow, manju! The sweet bean paste is scary. This one is a chestnut manju. The big chestnut is scary. This one is sake manju. It smells of sake and it's scary." The men around him finally noticed that something was wrong. When they opened the sliding door next to them, they found the man eating the manju with gusto. The people around them thought they had been tricked and said, "Stop eating! What are you really scared of?" to which the man replied, "Well... now, I'm afraid of hot tea." The man had anticipated that if he said he was afraid of manju, they would bring him manju, and his plan worked, resulting in the young town people being fooled as the man enjoyed plenty of their favorite manju.

Thank You So Much

Thank you very much to everyone who volunteered to make the Fall Food Fundraiser a success! Without all of our volunteers, it would not have been possible to have this fundraiser.

An EXTRA BIG thank you to Brian and Jerry Takemori (cousins to Peggy Okabayashi) of Takemori Farms who donated their famous “sweet gem” watermelons. BCF families who volunteered and each customer picking up their order were surprised with a free Takemori watermelon! Oiishi!!! Thank you Brian and Jerry!

SANGHA INSIGHTS

By Elizabeth Fujii

If you're a member of the BCF, you certainly know Ginny Yamamoto Syphax through her involvement in multiple duties which are essential to the Temple's operations. She leads Jr. YBA, Eagle Scout project coordinator, BCF Newsletter "Oneness" publisher, and she holds several BCF Board positions including Health & Welfare, Public Relations, and is the designated 2026-28 1st Vice-President. In her 'spare time' she also manages BCF email and FaceBook account, fields phone calls, and coordinates Zoom meetings for the Board. That's a lot!

Like her grandmother and her parents (Mits and Jayne Yamamoto), Ginny has been a life-long member of the BCF. She has three siblings; BCF member, Diane Nakao; brother, Gary Yamamoto (deceased – Gary's wife, Debbie is also a BCF member), and sister, Glenna Madeiros. Born and raised in Sacramento, she and her family are huge Kings fan - holding season tickets since 1987.

She attended Luther Burbank High School and Sacramento City College where she studied Child Development. After working for the State of California, Developmental Services, she retired after 20 years and went on to pursue a career with Pampered Chef for 20 additional years where she ranked an impressive Top 1.5% in Sales for the company (there were 72,000 consultants at the time Ginny accomplished this). She also earned several free trips. She maintained the Director level with, on average, 25 consultants under her guidance.

Ginny is most proud her successful 43-year marriage and her family. She met her husband, Robert on a blind date in December 1980 and they married ten months later. Together, they have two children, Ryan (39) and Robyn (33), and a Japanese Kai Ken dog, Mika. Earlier this year, Ginny accompanied her father (Mits) to Jerome, Arkansas where he was incarcerated and to Tule Lake, California where her mother (Jayne) was incarcerated. Her travels have taken her to Canada, Japan and Hawaii and she has cruised throughout the Caribbean Sea, visited Alaska, Mexico, Nicaragua, Honduras, Columbia and Costa Rica and cruised through the Panama Canal.

“B.R.A.I.D.” – Building Respectful Awareness

Cooperation and Teamwork

Today, I woke up at the bright hour of six o'clock, ready to hop in the car and help prepare food for our annual bazaar. It's special today, as volunteers from my school would also be helping out, as well as the usual church volunteers. So, what exactly did that mean? It meant that the process of packaging the orders and giving them to the people at the drive through would be much quicker, and would be more fun as well. And that's what happened, as my fellow classmates bantered with each other, we all packaged the udon in record time. In previous years, it would have taken us hours to package all of the udon, and yet with so many people helping, it took us a mere hour and a half. Perhaps this can teach us something, a lesson on cooperation and teamwork to get things done.

SIGNS REFRESHED

The BCF front entrance sign now sports the new BCF website address. The Heisei Garden signpost is again fresh with new signage. Mits Yamamoto hand crafted the wooden signs, part of a Boy Scout Eagle project. The Boy Scouts “spruced up” the signage and weather protected them. They also created a walking path, rock path, and mini rock garden. (West side of MPR, close to the Heisei Garden.)
